A nighttime photograph of the Bangkok skyline. In the background, several modern skyscrapers are illuminated against the dark blue sky. In the foreground, traditional Thai temples with ornate, multi-tiered roofs are visible, some of which are brightly lit. The city is situated along a river, and the lights from the buildings reflect on the water's surface. The overall scene captures the blend of modern urban development and traditional Thai architecture.

BANGKOK

The City of Angels

The capital city and chief port of Thailand, located on the delta of the Chao Phraya River, one of southeastern Asia's most important rivers. Bangkok is the cosmopolitan city and Thailand's cultural and commercial centre. The metropolis is a bustling, crowded city, with temples, hotels, shops, and homes juxtaposed along its roads and canals. It is also a major tourist destination, noted for bountiful cultural attractions.
